Too Good Not to Share

The following story doesn't focus on our beloved clydesdales, but I decided it was too good not to share! Such an incredible true story! I hope you all enjoy it as much as I did!

Timeline Photos

LENNIE GWYTHER & HIS PONY GINGER MICK

On the morning of February 3rd, 1932, at the tender age of nine, Lennie Gwyther set out on his beloved pony Ginger Mick from his home farm "Flers" just south of Leongatha to ride 1000 kms to Sydney to be present at the opening of the newly constructed Sydney Harbour Bridge.

Neither weather nor bushfires dampened Lennie's resolution to be present at the opening ceremony of the Bridge (then the longest single span bridge in the world.)

Lennie's parents, Capt. Leo and Clare Gwyther, had allowed Lennie to make this monumental journey as a reward for his work running the family farm for some months when Leo was incapacitated due to a major work accident.

Lennie carried a letter from the Wooryal Shire President to the Lord Mayor of Sydney. When passing through Canberra Prime Minister Joseph Lyons, himself a Tasmanian farmer, shook Lennie's hand and wished him well. News of the boy and pony preceded them until all Australia could read of their progress. Even the London Times recorded the determination of Lennie to follow his dream.

Stirred by the courage of the young boy from South Gippsland people were moved to come to roadsides to wave and wish him 'Godspeed'. Honoured by an invitation to partake in the official opening parade, Lennie must have wondered why all the fuss, being a quiet retiring youngster.

The Gwyther family sincerely thank the people of Leongatha district, assisted by the Leongatha Chamber of Commerce and many other local groups for this tribute to one of their own.

This Statue was proudly unveiled by members of the Gwyther Family on 14th October 2017.

“The Baron” - Baron of Buchlyvie

Clydesdale Stallion, foaled 16 May 1900, bred by William McKeich, Sold by public auction December 1911 for 9500gns. Died 30 June 1914

AT 21 shillings to the guinea, 9500 guineas was a considerable sum, and set a world record price at the time for the sale of a horse.

Auctions were conducted with sale price in guineas, so that the seller received the nominated amount in pounds, while the auctioneer kept the extra shilling per pound as commission.

BUT, let's step back a few years in the story, to consider the Scot, William Dunlop...

William had been involved with Clydesdales since his boyhood and in 1897 he bought two good mature stallions and a fine brood mare with which he established Dunure Mains as a stud.

From then on he devoted himself to buying and selling and exhibiting horses and travelling the length and breadth of Britain in his quest for outstanding stock.

He was recognised as an excellent judge of Clydesdales and within ten years his horses were winning the breed's major honours. James Kilpatrick, another clydesdale breeder, and William Dunlop were keen rivals but good friends.

They competed against each other in business and in the show ring but each respected the other's knowledge of horses.

“Clydesdales Back In Time”

Photos from Years Past

In 1901, Kilpatrick saw a gangling yearling Clydesdale being exhibited by William McKeich of Buchlyvie. The young horse was Baron of Buchlyvie.

He was thought by many to be far from impressive in its conformation and action but the experienced Kilpatrick recognised its potential and tried to buy it.

McKeich was also aware of his animal's worth and refused to sell and rejecting a second, improved offer of £200 a few weeks later.

Eventually, in 1902, McKeich took him to the Aberdeen Highland Show, gaining third place, and he then agreed to sell The Baron to James Kilpatrick for £700, with a gelding 'thrown in for luck'. £700 was a considerable sum as at that time a good yearling could be bought for between £400 and £500. At that juncture, an odd thing occurred.

In spite of his admiration for Baron of Buchlyvie, and having been so keen to purchase it, Kilpatrick sold a half share in the horse to his rival, William Dunlop.

He claimed later that he had done so for the reason that a few months earlier he had sold a stallion (named Royal Carrick) to Dunlop which had died at the beginning of his first season, and that his motive had been to compensate Dunlop for his loss.

Whatever the reason for the sharing of the horse and the two men kept their transaction secret and for many months Kilpatrick was thought to be still the sole owner.

Baron of Buchlyvie was kept at Craigie Mains and as a three year old was exhibited as being owned by James Kilpatrick. With the stud's expert preparation and the horse won prizes at Ayr, Kilmarnock and Glasgow horse shows.

Although a late developer, he began to take on the size and conformation of an excellent Clydesdale stallion. The Baron stood at stud at Craigie and half of his earnings were paid to William Dunlop and the sleeping partner.

Late in 1903, Dunlop asked Kilpatrick to sell him his half-share in the Baron so that he, Dunlop, could be sole owner. At first Kilpatrick refused but eventually, and surprisingly, he agreed to sell.

The story of the figure varies a bit, depending on whether you read Kilpatrick's memoirs published in 1949, or Dunlop's address to the society in 1935, but it seems that Kilpatrick asked £2000 for the share, and Dunlop figured that £2000 was the full price so half that, or £1000 was correct for his share. The horse had been delivered to Dunure Mains, Dunlop's property, and with the 'confusion' over the balance of £1000, Kilpatrick decided to call the deal off, but Dunlop refused. In the stalemate, the profits from service fees for the following couple of seasons were shared equally.

In 1908, the boil reached a head-this was also the year that The Baron's most famous son, Dunure Footprint was foaled. Dunlop claimed he had already paid Kilpatrick, but Kilpatrick denied this, stating the payments were shares from service owed, not payment for the horse. Litigation followed, creating tremendous interest amongst the Clydesdale community, and the subsequent auction wherein the horse would be sold, created even more interest.

A crowd estimated at between 4000 and 5000 attended the sale of the Baron of Buchlyvie, now aged almost 12 years. Each 'owner' was entitled to bid, but the full price was to be paid to the auctioneer, before the winner could take delivery. The sale was well documented, and began with an opening bid of £3000 from a well-known hackney breeder of the day, rising in £100 increments. Dunlop and Kilpatrick entered the bidding in the low and mid £4000s. Kilpatrick appeared the winner at £7000 as Dunlop seemed to have withdrawn, but a stranger in the gallery joined in then, and the bids climbed to £8000 with Kilpatrick in the lead once again...

After a pause and some jostling and joking, the figures swept up, finally peaking at £9500 with The Baron being sold to the stranger in the gallery.

After the excitement finally died, the auctioneer announced that the final bid came from a bidder acting for Mr Dunlop (as explained, the bid was £9500, but the bill was actually 9500 guineas or £9975).

Thus the Baron of Buchlyvie returned to Dunure mains, and James Kilpatrick took home a cheque for half of that world record bid. To add to that, James Kilpatrick was owed his share of several years of unpaid service fee profits- as ordered by the court, and upheld in a House of Lords appeal.

Baron of Buchlyvie survived that hectic auction by almost 2-1/2 years and allegedly had his leg broken by a kick from a mare, so was destroyed. His body was buried in the rose garden at Dunure Mains. Some years later (and with Dunlop's permission) his body was exhumed and sent to the museum at Kelvingrove, Glasgow and rebuilt in memorium of the breed and the auction.

Dunure Footprint, The Baron's most celebrated son which made Mr Dunlop's fortune was foaled in 1908 and died in 1930 - but that is another story.

A silver statue (pictured here) of the Baron of Buchlyvie was created by G Halliday in memorium of the significant occasion and world record price, and was given to Mr Dunlop at a special dinner in Ayr in 1912. The silver statue, some medals, and the letter of request to exhume the bones are on display beside the recreated skeleton of the Baron of Buchlyvie in the Kelvingrove Museum, Glasgow.

Along with the broken humerus bone in the near foreleg, another interesting aspect is the fact that in all the show photos, The Baron was pictured as a horse with a docked tail, yet the skeleton has a full set of tail bones! Looking closely, you can see where the 'ring-in' occurred, and the false extension to the tail which is on show, came from a different horse which was a little smaller!

Vic Branch Committee Goes Online! ZOOM Meetings!

COVID-19 is forcing us all to learn new skills! The Victorian Branch Committee held a Trial Committee Meeting over Zoom recently to see if this would be a viable option. From all reports – (with the exception of a few hiccups!) all went fairly well. It is something the Committee may be forced to utilise more in the coming months.

NEXT COMMITTEE MEETING – 10 July 2020
